ARCHITECTURAL PEDAGOGY AS BRIDGE BETWEEN CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY SKILLS AND CONVENTIONAL THEORY

The Programme Is Intended For - Teachers & Young Professionals Keen To Learn About Construction Industry Skills Requirements

TTP Dates: 19th - 22nd July 2022
Time: 10.30 am to 3.45 pm

ABOUT THE PROGRAM

Skills and knowledge are the driving forces of economic growth and social development for any country. Presently, the country faces a demand – supply mismatch, as the economy needs more skilled workforce than that is available. In the higher education sphere, knowledge and skills are required for diverse forms of employment in the sector of construction, health care manufacturing and other services.

The National Skills Qualifications Framework (NSQF) is a competency-based framework that organizes qualifications according to a series of knowledge, skills and aptitude. NSQF lists down what an individual performing that task should know and also are able to do. Just as each job role may require the performance of a number of tasks, the combination of NOSs (National Occupational Standards) corresponding to those tasks form the Qualification Pack (QP) for that job role. It defines professional skills are what a learner should be able to do and. Core skills refer to basic skills involving literacy and now of IT skills, methods, materials, tools and instruments used to perform the job. The objective of the training programme is to deliver selected industry-ready professional skills required for architecture and construction industry, which can be applied directly upon completion of the course. This training programme will try to bridge the gap between construction industry skills requirements and current Architectural pedagogy.

KEY TAKEAWAYS

- Industry update in Architecture technology
- Architecture pedagogy for industry skills
- Skill enhancement in the New age technology

India's construction sector is being infused with fast-paced construction technologies to cater to the ever-growing population and building footprint in rapidly urbanizing cities. However, the environment and thermal performance of these technologies is currently questionable and may even deter India from achieving its thermal comfort goals.

Traditional or native construction technologies have multiple advantages over their fast-paced, often industry-manufactured counterparts, such as local material availability and promotion of local labour and skills which is crucial to sustain the rural economy. Most importantly, these technologies have withstood and responded to the native climate for years and ensured thermal comfort to the occupants.

Centre for Science and Environment and Piloo Mody College of Architecture are jointly organizing this conference-cum-roundtable to deliberate on drivers and barriers for climate-appropriate self-built housing. The aim of this discussion is to draw a roadmap to make affordable housing more sustainable and livable for the poor while generating jobs for green recovery in a post-pandemic world.
