Description:

Sri Sri University is committed to following the laws and regulations of India and Odisha, which place a high priority on principles like justice and equality. This is reflected in the university's HR Policies and Procedure, which include a Code of Conduct that emphasizes the importance of promoting respect among all employees regardless of their gender, race, or nationality.

The policy also addresses inappropriate conduct, such as discrimination of any kind (based on race, gender, age, or mental or physical abilities). This is important because discrimination can create a hostile work environment and prevent employees from reaching their full potential.

The laws and regulations that control Sri Sri University are in accordance with the norms established by the governments of India and Odisha, both of which place a high priority on principles like justice and equality. In reality, the "Code of Conduct," which emphasizes the value of promoting respect among all employees regardless of their gender, race, or nationality, is a part of Sri Sri University's HR Policies and Procedure. Inappropriate conduct, such as discrimination of any kind (based on race, gender, age, or mental or physical abilities), is also addressed by the policy.
