They also enjoyed interactions with university students and performed song and dance routines. SSU students invited nearby school children to experience the university environment for the first time. The students visited the Central Library, Central Lab, Agriculture Lab, Animation Lab, and Architecture Studios, and participated in a song and dance competition. They were assured by the librarian of regular access to the library with a letter from their school administration. Throughout the visit, the children eagerly asked about program eligibility and how many years it would take before they could attend Sri Sri University, showing their excitement and curiosity about higher education. This exposure clearly left a lasting impression on them.
